General Physics Corporation Announces Virtual Plant™ Addition to EtaPRO™

Elkridge, Md. January 11, 2005. General Physics Corporation (GP), a subsidiary of GP Strategies Corporation (NYSE: GPX), announced today the release of Virtual Plant™, an advanced software platform for thermodynamic modeling of power plant cycles. Virtual Plant provides integrated, first principles engineering models for monitoring and forecasting fossil and combined cycle power plant thermal performance. Using Virtual Plant, plant operators and engineers can quickly quantify the impact of operating decisions, maintenance activities, and capital improvements on plant economy and competitiveness. Virtual Plant is a modern software system seamlessly integrated with EtaPRO™, GP's industry-leading real-time performance monitoring and optimization system which is installed on over 250 generating units world-wide.
